1. The challenge in teaching History is influenced by the nature of the subject, teachers' competence and learners' attitude towards the course. Pupils learn best when the teacher provides activities that are cognitively challenging and they are actively engaged on it.

Historiography involves the study of the writing of history and provides the pupils the opportunities in learning the meaning of history and appreciate its value. Before the learners learn to become historians, teachers of history must be exposed to activities that will enable them to experience first-hand, what it is to be a historian. Thus, this training will help our Philippine History teachers, enhance their skills and competence in writing local history and making of meaningful and relevant support instructional materials.
